Environmental Restoration Program Documents Hill Air Force Base

The Air Force Civil Engineer Center (AFCEC) Administrative Record website provides a way for the public to search and review documents regarding the environmental cleanup and sampling conducted by the Air Force under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA). These documents form the basis for environmental response actions and demonstrate the public's opportunity to participate in and comment on the selection of the response action. The AFCEC Administrative Record is continuously updated to reflect progress along the path to clean up each site until the response is complete.

To search the Environmental Restoration Program documents for Hill Air Force Base on the AFCEC Administrative Record website, do the following:

1. Go to the website: <https://ar.cce.af.mil>
2. Click "Continue to Site"
3. Select "Hill AFB, UT" from the Installation List on the left
4. Search the Administrative Record for public cleanup documents by using one of the following methods:
 - AR #: If you are seeking a specific document and have the AR #, enter it on the AR # line
 - Subject or Title: Use this method to search for words in the title of the document only
 - Full Metadata Search: Use this method to expand your search for any field that was populated when a document was uploaded to the AR
 - Full Document Search: For the most broad search of any word inside the documents, enter your search here
 - Select a Specific Location: Select from Sites, Operable Units (OUs) or Records of Decision (RODs) to narrow your search to a specific site. See below for a key to the OUs and their corresponding communities.
5. To view the document, click on the magnifying glass. All documents are stored and presented in standard PDF format. A PDF viewer is required to view the documents.
