

Hill Air Force Base (AFB) Restoration Advisory Board Information

What is a RAB?

The Restoration Advisory Board (RAB) is an instrumental part of the environmental cleanup program at Hill Air Force Base. Its purpose is to advise Hill AFB on community concerns regarding the environmental investigation and cleanup activities conducted under the Air Force's Installation Restoration Program. The Hill AFB RAB was formed in 1995 to encourage more community participation in the cleanup process and to allow community members and other stakeholders to have meaningful dialog with Hill AFB environmental officials.

The RAB is comprised of community members, local government representatives, environmental regulators, Air Force representatives and other interested parties. The RAB is co-chaired by a member of the community (chosen by the RAB's voting members) and by a Hill AFB representative. The RAB has developed its own mission statement and operating procedures, and consults with the Air Force in developing meeting agendas. All RAB meetings are open to the public. Hill AFB provides administrative support for the RAB and pays for all necessary RAB meeting expenses.

RAB Membership Expectations

Community RAB members serve voluntarily, without compensation, for a two-year term. Members are expected to attend all quarterly meetings or send an alternate in their place, and devote up to three hours a month on their responsibilities. RAB members will have an opportunity to review cleanup plans, program priorities and comment on technical documents and reports. Members will act as a liaison between the community and the Air Force, and as such, should make themselves available to meet with members of their community. RAB meetings are typically held at 6:30 p.m. on the last Thursday of the month in January, April, July and October at the Sunset City Building (200 W 1300 N in Sunset, Utah).

If you are interested in becoming a member of the Hill AFB RAB, fill out the application on the reverse side of this sheet. RAB applications are also available online at www.hill.af.mil/RAB-Application.
